

THE WASHINGTON TIMES

(MORNING, EVENING AND SUNDAY)
OWNED AND ISSUED BY
THE WASHINGTON TIMES COMPANY,
THIRDS BUILDING
EASTWISSE CORNER PENNSYLVANIA AVENUE
AND TENTH STREET.
Telephone—Editorial Room, 333.
Business Office, 37.
Price—Morning or Evening Edition, One Cent
Sunday Edition, Three Cents
Monthly, by Carrier—
Morning and Sunday, Thirty-five Cents
Evening, Thirty Cents
Morning, Evening and Sunday, Fifty Cents
BY MAIL, POSTAGE PREPAID.
Morning, Evening and Sunday, 50c
Morning and Sunday, 35c
Evening and Sunday, 35c
WASHINGTON, D.C., MAY 31, 1896.

WASHINGTON, D.C., MAY 31, 1896.
The circulation of THE TIMES for the week ended May 22, 1896, was as follows:
Saturday, May 16, 46,204
Sunday, May 17, 24,984
Monday, May 18, 56,870
Tuesday, May 19, 58,397
Wednesday, May 20, 56,281
Thursday, May 21, 47,182
Friday, May 22, 46,614
Total copies printed, 336,532
Less damaged copies, copies left over, unsold, in office, and copies returned, unsold, from news stands and branch offices, 23,995
Net, 312,537
I solemnly swear that the above is a correct statement of the circulation of THE WASHINGTON TIMES for the week ended May 22, 1896, and that every copy was delivered or mailed for a valuable consideration.
WILLIAM BUTLER,
Superintendent of Circulation.
Subscribed and sworn to before me this 23d day of May, A. D. 1896.
[SEAL] ERNEST G. THOMPSON,
Notary Public.

MEMORIAL DAY.
The American people are to be congratulated upon the fact that the interest in Memorial Day, instead of fading with the lapse of time, appears to grow in intensity every year. It is proof that not only are the services of the great silent host, whose last resting places all over this broad land are decked with flowers to-day, appreciated and their memory honored, but that the cause for which they fought and fell has lost none of its sacredness in the eyes of their descendants. In the orations which will be pronounced today their praise will be spoken, nor will any orator fail to point to the starry banner and to every star in it as the precious inheritance of their valor and self-sacrifice.

Probably one of the pleasantest thoughts that arises on this day in the breast of the veterans of the Union is this, that the veterans of the Confederacy are with them in spirit. In many cities, especially in the South, the boys in Blue and the boys in Grey will march together to the national cemeteries, or wherever the ashes of a Union soldier may rest, and strew flowers upon his grave. And the gentle country is replete with the Confederate veteran who decorates the graves of his fallen comrades.

It is an elevating, inspiring thought that men who faced each other in battle have overcome all bitterness of feeling, vanquished all resentment, and recognize the fact that there is a common destiny, theirs a common country. Honor is a thing of the past; admiration for each other's valor and devotion to principle dwells in their hearts and rules their conduct toward each other.

"Old Glory" is not dearer to the North to-day than it is to the South, and pride of country as powerful in one section as it is in the other. Yankee and Johnny Reb are keeping step together to the music of the Union and rejoicing with equal measure in the destiny of the republic.

With such sentiments of patriotism does every veteran approach the silent monuments of peace today. They and their cause will ever be held holy, because both to gether gave us the Union as it is today and will be forever. One and indivisible.

WORSE THAN NO SERVICE.
The people living along the lines of the Soldiers' Home and Eckington Railway are fully justified in their complaint about the failure of the company to render such service as they have a right to expect. The matter has gone so far as to be brought to the attention of the Attorney General, presumably with a view to bringing action looking to an amendment of the company's charter, and was referred to the District Commissioners for their opinion, which has been given in accordance with well known facts. Looked at in the light of a public convenience, the Soldiers' Home and Eckington Company's lines are a dismal failure. The equipment is wretched, and the public can place no reliance whatever upon the schedule, if such a one be in existence. The Commissioners declare that repeated requests by them have failed to bring it forth.

An unusual amount of indulgence has been shown this company both by the Commissioners and Congress. It has repeatedly broken its promises of a better service and even attempted to override the law prohibiting the operation of overhead trolleys within the city limits. It is in the enjoyment of a valuable franchise in lines run through thickly populated portions of the city and to attractive suburbs, and, if it were to be true, more than one party of capitalists stands ready to occupy the territory, and give the people the best rapid transit service if they could but obtain the required concession. The Eckington company, however, blocks the way. It is playing the part of the dog in the manger, not being willing to do anything itself or give some other company the chance to occupy the field.

Against such a condition of affairs the people are more than justified in protesting. They are entitled to relief. The section of the city traversed by the Eckington company's lines are too important both for business and residential purposes to be dependent upon such wretched street railway accommodations as this company provides. It is quite time that some action be taken either to compel the company to live up to its charter obligations or to vacate that charter and give another company a chance. There is not a city of twenty thousand people anywhere in this country where such an apology for street car service would be tolerated by the people a day longer than would be necessary to make a change through the action of the courts.

PATROL ON WHEELS.
It affords The Times a great deal of pleasure to see that its suggestions to equip a part of the police force with bicycles has found favor in the eyes of the municipal triumvirate. Changed conditions necessitate corresponding changes to meet them. As well might a regiment of infantry be required to overtake a squadron of cavalry as a perambulating policeman be expected to overtake a scorching wheelman. "Biking cops" have become as necessary in the city as mounted policemen in the country districts, and the Commissioners show a proper recognition of the new order of things by undertaking to put a number of the city's guardians on wheels.

Though this will be an innovation for Washington, it is by no means a novelty in other cities, for in the majority of larger ones the bicycle policeman has been a familiar sight for some time. The new device cannot fail to add to the efficiency of the force, for the policeman on a wheel can cover a great deal more ground and in less time than his brother officer who has no other means of locomotion than his own underpinnings. The wheel will enable the officer frequently to overtake an offender who now, because more swift of foot, escapes from him. The wheel will prove its usefulness in more than one way, and it will doubtless be as heartily welcomed by the men as its usefulness will be appreciated by the community.

THE WOMAN WHO DID.
In Bow road, London east, one Saturday evening, two men the worse for drink were fighting like demons. They were surrounded by an excited and yelling crowd, and on of whom attempted to interfere, and, as usual, there was no police to be seen.

An old lady carrying a cross-hatched market basket came upon the scene, at which time the combatants were on the ground kicking and punching each other in a most savage manner. The old lady paused only long enough to take in the situation. Then she went to work and belabored the women about their heads and bodies with her basket.

This unexpected and energetic attack so surprised the fighters that, suspending hostilities, they sat up and stared at their assailant in mute astonishment. Then the old lady, seeing the things seemed to strike them, they burst into hearty laughter and, getting up, took their coats and went away, apparently quite friendly, while the old lady retired triumphantly amid the cheers of the crowd.—London Answers.

Millionaires are generally supposed to be very superstitious, but if the fact of ill-fortune were to deter any of the little fry erecting stately houses in London, we would certainly be justified by precedent. To mention a case. The downfall of Blandin, the railway king, followed on his beginning to build a house for himself which should eclipse all others. Baron Albert Grand never got further than the foundations of the palace which he intended to have named Kensington Court. Mr. Sanford had hardly begun the interior of his house in Carlton House Terrace when "Argentine" went down and he was obliged to sell it to Mrs. Mackay. The completion of Lord Revelstoke's palace in Charles street coincided with the Baring crisis, and it has been to let or for sale ever since. Lord Rosebery rebuilt his house just in time to enable him to occupy it on the collapse of his government. Now the disasters which have fallen on the Chartered Company coincide with the completion of the external structure of Mr. Begg's mansion in Park Lane.—St. James Gazette.

THE WASHINGTON TIMES
OWNED AND ISSUED BY
THE WASHINGTON TIMES COMPANY,
THIRDS BUILDING
EASTWISSE CORNER PENNSYLVANIA AVENUE
AND TENTH STREET.
Telephone—Editorial Room, 333.
Business Office, 37.
Price—Morning or Evening Edition, One Cent
Sunday Edition, Three Cents
Monthly, by Carrier—
Morning and Sunday, Thirty-five Cents
Evening, Thirty Cents
Morning, Evening and Sunday, Fifty Cents
BY MAIL, POSTAGE PREPAID.
Morning, Evening and Sunday, 50c
Morning and Sunday, 35c
Evening and Sunday, 35c
WASHINGTON, D.C., MAY 31, 1896.

THE TIMES
claims a circulation
one-half greater than any other paper in Washington—
and has it.
Circulation books
open to all.
Investigation of advertisers especially solicited.

THE CIRCULATION OF THE TIMES FOR THE WEEK ENDED MAY 22, 1896, WAS AS FOLLOWS:
Saturday, May 16, 46,204
Sunday, May 17, 24,984
Monday, May 18, 56,870
Tuesday, May 19, 58,397
Wednesday, May 20, 56,281
Thursday, May 21, 47,182
Friday, May 22, 46,614
Total copies printed, 336,532
Less damaged copies, copies left over, unsold, in office, and copies returned, unsold, from news stands and branch offices, 23,995
Net, 312,537
I solemnly swear that the above is a correct statement of the circulation of THE WASHINGTON TIMES for the week ended May 22, 1896, and that every copy was delivered or mailed for a valuable consideration.
WILLIAM BUTLER,
Superintendent of Circulation.
Subscribed and sworn to before me this 23d day of May, A. D. 1896.
[SEAL] ERNEST G. THOMPSON,
Notary Public.

Twelve Hours Ago.
If you miss any news in the morning edition look in the list below. What you're looking for was probably printed in yesterday evening's edition, and as The Times never repeats you'll have to take both editions to get all the news as quick as it happens.

NOTED BY THE PRESIDENT—
Returns to Congress the River and Harbor Bill.
ST. LOUIS A MORGUE—
Number of dead now placed at 181 in City Hospital.
DEATH DUE TO STORM—
Homer drowned in which Mrs. Mary J. Lott.

PASSED BY THE SENATE—
Bill for Repeal of Free Alcohol Tariff Clause.
WHY TREES WERE INJURED—
Superintendent Smith says They Should Be Kept Trimmed.
SYMPATHY FOR ST. LOUIS—
Commissioners Send a Telegram to Mayor Walbridge.

DISTRICT IN CONGRESS—
Last Meeting of the Senate Local Committee.
WILL REMAND A REASON—
Discharged Employees of the Coast Survey Inveighed.
AMOS RUSSE HAS NO CASE—
His Appeal Did Not Warrant a Meeting of License Directors.

TIMES JUVENILE LEAGUE—
Uniform-Zephyr Contest Postponed on Account of Storm.
MAY STOP TONIGHT'S FIGHT—
Gov. Morton gives Notice to the Queens County Sheriff.

INVESTIGATION OF THE JAIL—
Prosecutor Cook Has New Charges to File With the Judges.
WHILING AWAY THE HOURS—
Outings and Amusements Planned by Well-known People.

IN THE WHEELING WORLD—
Michael Lowers His Own Record for Seven Miles.
FIRE! FIRE! IT WAS LOADED—
Quintus Political Revolution Introduced by Mr. Grosvenor.

JIMMY KIMBALL'S HUMOR—
Joke Out of the Story of a Man Who Has No Reason.
Palaces of Millionaires.
Millionaires are generally supposed to be very superstitious, but if the fact of ill-fortune were to deter any of the little fry erecting stately houses in London, we would certainly be justified by precedent. To mention a case. The downfall of Blandin, the railway king, followed on his beginning to build a house for himself which should eclipse all others. Baron Albert Grand never got further than the foundations of the palace which he intended to have named Kensington Court. Mr. Sanford had hardly begun the interior of his house in Carlton House Terrace when "Argentine" went down and he was obliged to sell it to Mrs. Mackay. The completion of Lord Revelstoke's palace in Charles street coincided with the Baring crisis, and it has been to let or for sale ever since. Lord Rosebery rebuilt his house just in time to enable him to occupy it on the collapse of his government. Now the disasters which have fallen on the Chartered Company coincide with the completion of the external structure of Mr. Begg's mansion in Park Lane.—St. James Gazette.

MEMORIAL DAY.

The American people are to be congratulated upon the fact that the interest in Memorial Day, instead of fading with the lapse of time, appears to grow in intensity every year. It is proof that not only are the services of the great silent host, whose last resting places all over this broad land are decked with flowers to-day, appreciated and their memory honored, but that the cause for which they fought and fell has lost none of its sacredness in the eyes of their descendants. In the orations which will be pronounced today their praise will be spoken, nor will any orator fail to point to the starry banner and to every star in it as the precious inheritance of their valor and self-sacrifice.

Probably one of the pleasantest thoughts that arises on this day in the breast of the veterans of the Union is this, that the veterans of the Confederacy are with them in spirit. In many cities, especially in the South, the boys in Blue and the boys in Grey will march together to the national cemeteries, or wherever the ashes of a Union soldier may rest, and strew flowers upon his grave. And the gentle country is replete with the Confederate veteran who decorates the graves of his fallen comrades.

It is an elevating, inspiring thought that men who faced each other in battle have overcome all bitterness of feeling, vanquished all resentment, and recognize the fact that there is a common destiny, theirs a common country. Honor is a thing of the past; admiration for each other's valor and devotion to principle dwells in their hearts and rules their conduct toward each other.

"Old Glory" is not dearer to the North to-day than it is to the South, and pride of country as powerful in one section as it is in the other. Yankee and Johnny Reb are keeping step together to the music of the Union and rejoicing with equal measure in the destiny of the republic.

With such sentiments of patriotism does every veteran approach the silent monuments of peace today. They and their cause will ever be held holy, because both to gether gave us the Union as it is today and will be forever. One and indivisible.

WORSE THAN NO SERVICE.
The people living along the lines of the Soldiers' Home and Eckington Railway are fully justified in their complaint about the failure of the company to render such service as they have a right to expect. The matter has gone so far as to be brought to the attention of the Attorney General, presumably with a view to bringing action looking to an amendment of the company's charter, and was referred to the District Commissioners for their opinion, which has been given in accordance with well known facts. Looked at in the light of a public convenience, the Soldiers' Home and Eckington Company's lines are a dismal failure. The equipment is wretched, and the public can place no reliance whatever upon the schedule, if such a one be in existence. The Commissioners declare that repeated requests by them have failed to bring it forth.

An unusual amount of indulgence has been shown this company both by the Commissioners and Congress. It has repeatedly broken its promises of a better service and even attempted to override the law prohibiting the operation of overhead trolleys within the city limits. It is in the enjoyment of a valuable franchise in lines run through thickly populated portions of the city and to attractive suburbs, and, if it were to be true, more than one party of capitalists stands ready to occupy the territory, and give the people the best rapid transit service if they could but obtain the required concession. The Eckington company, however, blocks the way. It is playing the part of the dog in the manger, not being willing to do anything itself or give some other company the chance to occupy the field.

Against such a condition of affairs the people are more than justified in protesting. They are entitled to relief. The section of the city traversed by the Eckington company's lines are too important both for business and residential purposes to be dependent upon such wretched street railway accommodations as this company provides. It is quite time that some action be taken either to compel the company to live up to its charter obligations or to vacate that charter and give another company a chance. There is not a city of twenty thousand people anywhere in this country where such an apology for street car service would be tolerated by the people a day longer than would be necessary to make a change through the action of the courts.

PATROL ON WHEELS.
It affords The Times a great deal of pleasure to see that its suggestions to equip a part of the police force with bicycles has found favor in the eyes of the municipal triumvirate. Changed conditions necessitate corresponding changes to meet them. As well might a regiment of infantry be required to overtake a squadron of cavalry as a perambulating policeman be expected to overtake a scorching wheelman. "Biking cops" have become as necessary in the city as mounted policemen in the country districts, and the Commissioners show a proper recognition of the new order of things by undertaking to put a number of the city's guardians on wheels.

Though this will be an innovation for Washington, it is by no means a novelty in other cities, for in the majority of larger ones the bicycle policeman has been a familiar sight for some time. The new device cannot fail to add to the efficiency of the force, for the policeman on a wheel can cover a great deal more ground and in less time than his brother officer who has no other means of locomotion than his own underpinnings. The wheel will enable the officer frequently to overtake an offender who now, because more swift of foot, escapes from him. The wheel will prove its usefulness in more than one way, and it will doubtless be as heartily welcomed by the men as its usefulness will be appreciated by the community.

THE WOMAN WHO DID.
In Bow road, London east, one Saturday evening, two men the worse for drink were fighting like demons. They were surrounded by an excited and yelling crowd, and on of whom attempted to interfere, and, as usual, there was no police to be seen.

An old lady carrying a cross-hatched market basket came upon the scene, at which time the combatants were on the ground kicking and punching each other in a most savage manner. The old lady paused only long enough to take in the situation. Then she went to work and belabored the women about their heads and bodies with her basket.

This unexpected and energetic attack so surprised the fighters that, suspending hostilities, they sat up and stared at their assailant in mute astonishment. Then the old lady, seeing the things seemed to strike them, they burst into hearty laughter and, getting up, took their coats and went away, apparently quite friendly, while the old lady retired triumphantly amid the cheers of the crowd.—London Answers.

Millionaires are generally supposed to be very superstitious, but if the fact of ill-fortune were to deter any of the little fry erecting stately houses in London, we would certainly be justified by precedent. To mention a case. The downfall of Blandin, the railway king, followed on his beginning to build a house for himself which should eclipse all others. Baron Albert Grand never got further than the foundations of the palace which he intended to have named Kensington Court. Mr. Sanford had hardly begun the interior of his house in Carlton House Terrace when "Argentine" went down and he was obliged to sell it to Mrs. Mackay. The completion of Lord Revelstoke's palace in Charles street coincided with the Baring crisis, and it has been to let or for sale ever since. Lord Rosebery rebuilt his house just in time to enable him to occupy it on the collapse of his government. Now the disasters which have fallen on the Chartered Company coincide with the completion of the external structure of Mr. Begg's mansion in Park Lane.—St. James Gazette.

THE WASHINGTON TIMES
OWNED AND ISSUED BY
THE WASHINGTON TIMES COMPANY,
THIRDS BUILDING
EASTWISSE CORNER PENNSYLVANIA AVENUE
AND TENTH STREET.
Telephone—Editorial Room, 333.
Business Office, 37.
Price—Morning or Evening Edition, One Cent
Sunday Edition, Three Cents
Monthly, by Carrier—
Morning and Sunday, Thirty-five Cents
Evening, Thirty Cents
Morning, Evening and Sunday, Fifty Cents
BY MAIL, POSTAGE PREPAID.
Morning, Evening and Sunday, 50c
Morning and Sunday, 35c
Evening and Sunday, 35c
WASHINGTON, D.C., MAY 31, 1896.

THE TIMES
claims a circulation
one-half greater than any other paper in Washington—
and has it.
Circulation books
open to all.
Investigation of advertisers especially solicited.

THE CIRCULATION OF THE TIMES FOR THE WEEK ENDED MAY 22, 1896, WAS AS FOLLOWS:
Saturday, May 16, 46,204
Sunday, May 17, 24,984
Monday, May 18, 56,870
Tuesday, May 19, 58,397
Wednesday, May 20, 56,281
Thursday, May 21, 47,182
Friday, May 22, 46,614
Total copies printed, 336,532
Less damaged copies, copies left over, unsold, in office, and copies returned, unsold, from news stands and branch offices, 23,995
Net, 312,537
I solemnly swear that the above is a correct statement of the circulation of THE WASHINGTON TIMES for the week ended May 22, 1896, and that every copy was delivered or mailed for a valuable consideration.
WILLIAM BUTLER,
Superintendent of Circulation.
Subscribed and sworn to before me this 23d day of May, A. D. 1896.
[SEAL] ERNEST G. THOMPSON,
Notary Public.

Twelve Hours Ago.
If you miss any news in the morning edition look in the list below. What you're looking for was probably printed in yesterday evening's edition, and as The Times never repeats you'll have to take both editions to get all the news as quick as it happens.

NOTED BY THE PRESIDENT—
Returns to Congress the River and Harbor Bill.
ST. LOUIS A MORGUE—
Number of dead now placed at 181 in City Hospital.
DEATH DUE TO STORM—
Homer drowned in which Mrs. Mary J. Lott.

PASSED BY THE SENATE—
Bill for Repeal of Free Alcohol Tariff Clause.
WHY TREES WERE INJURED—
Superintendent Smith says They Should Be Kept Trimmed.
SYMPATHY FOR ST. LOUIS—
Commissioners Send a Telegram to Mayor Walbridge.

DISTRICT IN CONGRESS—
Last Meeting of the Senate Local Committee.
WILL REMAND A REASON—
Discharged Employees of the Coast Survey Inveighed.
AMOS RUSSE HAS NO CASE—
His Appeal Did Not Warrant a Meeting of License Directors.

TIMES JUVENILE LEAGUE—
Uniform-Zephyr Contest Postponed on Account of Storm.
MAY STOP TONIGHT'S FIGHT—
Gov. Morton gives Notice to the Queens County Sheriff.

INVESTIGATION OF THE JAIL—
Prosecutor Cook Has New Charges to File With the Judges.
WHILING AWAY THE HOURS—
Outings and Amusements Planned by Well-known People.

IN THE WHEELING WORLD—
Michael Lowers His Own Record for Seven Miles.
FIRE! FIRE! IT WAS LOADED—
Quintus Political Revolution Introduced by Mr. Grosvenor.

JIMMY KIMBALL'S HUMOR—
Joke Out of the Story of a Man Who Has No Reason.
Palaces of Millionaires.
Millionaires are generally supposed to be very superstitious, but if the fact of ill-fortune were to deter any of the little fry erecting stately houses in London, we would certainly be justified by precedent. To mention a case. The downfall of Blandin, the railway king, followed on his beginning to build a house for himself which should eclipse all others. Baron Albert Grand never got further than the foundations of the palace which he intended to have named Kensington Court. Mr. Sanford had hardly begun the interior of his house in Carlton House Terrace when "Argentine" went down and he was obliged to sell it to Mrs. Mackay. The completion of Lord Revelstoke's palace in Charles street coincided with the Baring crisis, and it has been to let or for sale ever since. Lord Rosebery rebuilt his house just in time to enable him to occupy it on the collapse of his government. Now the disasters which have fallen on the Chartered Company coincide with the completion of the external structure of Mr. Begg's mansion in Park Lane.—St. James Gazette.

THE WASHINGTON TIMES
OWNED AND ISSUED BY
THE WASHINGTON TIMES COMPANY,
THIRDS BUILDING
EASTWISSE CORNER PENNSYLVANIA AVENUE
AND TENTH STREET.
Telephone—Editorial Room, 333.
Business Office, 37.
Price—Morning or Evening Edition, One Cent
Sunday Edition, Three Cents
Monthly, by Carrier—
Morning and Sunday, Thirty-five Cents
Evening, Thirty Cents
Morning, Evening and Sunday, Fifty Cents
BY MAIL, POSTAGE PREPAID.
Morning, Evening and Sunday, 50c
Morning and Sunday, 35c
Evening and Sunday, 35c
WASHINGTON, D.C., MAY 31, 1896.

City Brevities

Mr. W. E. Breckwith, Halifax, N. S., is at Willard's.
Mr. and Mrs. J. M. C. of Newark, N. J., are at the Elbert.
Judge J. W. Bookwater of the Springfield, O., court, is at the Regis.
H. H. Hancock and Walter Smith, from London, England, are at Willard's.
Mrs. Nelson Thurber of New York city is registered at the National.
Comptroller Eckels has gone to Atlanta to deliver a speech in favor of sound money.
It is said that Chief Justice Bingham will probably go away again for his health, and to every star in it as the precious inheritance of their valor and self-sacrifice.

Probably one of the pleasantest thoughts that arises on this day in the breast of the veterans of the Union is this, that the veterans of the Confederacy are with them in spirit. In many cities, especially in the South, the boys in Blue and the boys in Grey will march together to the national cemeteries, or wherever the ashes of a Union soldier may rest, and strew flowers upon his grave. And the gentle country is replete with the Confederate veteran who decorates the graves of his fallen comrades.

It is an elevating, inspiring thought that men who faced each other in battle have overcome all bitterness of feeling, vanquished all resentment, and recognize the fact that there is a common destiny, theirs a common country. Honor is a thing of the past; admiration for each other's valor and devotion to principle dwells in their hearts and rules their conduct toward each other.

"Old Glory" is not dearer to the North to-day than it is to the South, and pride of country as powerful in one section as it is in the other. Yankee and Johnny Reb are keeping step together to the music of the Union and rejoicing with equal measure in the destiny of the republic.

With such sentiments of patriotism does every veteran approach the silent monuments of peace today. They and their cause will ever be held holy, because both to gether gave us the Union as it is today and will be forever. One and indivisible.

WORSE THAN NO SERVICE.
The people living along the lines of the Soldiers' Home and Eckington Railway are fully justified in their complaint about the failure of the company to render such service as they have a right to expect. The matter has gone so far as to be brought to the attention of the Attorney General, presumably with a view to bringing action looking to an amendment of the company's charter, and was referred to the District Commissioners for their opinion, which has been given in accordance with well known facts. Looked at in the light of a public convenience, the Soldiers' Home and Eckington Company's lines are a dismal failure. The equipment is wretched, and the public can place no reliance whatever upon the schedule, if such a one be in existence. The Commissioners declare that repeated requests by them have failed to bring it forth.

An unusual amount of indulgence has been shown this company both by the Commissioners and Congress. It has repeatedly broken its promises of a better service and even attempted to override the law prohibiting the operation of overhead trolleys within the city limits. It is in the enjoyment of a valuable franchise in lines run through thickly populated portions of the city and to attractive suburbs, and, if it were to be true, more than one party of capitalists stands ready to occupy the territory, and give the people the best rapid transit service if they could but obtain the required concession. The Eckington company, however, blocks the way. It is playing the part of the dog in the manger, not being willing to do anything itself or give some other company the chance to occupy the field.

Against such a condition of affairs the people are more than justified in protesting. They are entitled to relief. The section of the city traversed by the Eckington company's lines are too important both for business and residential purposes to be dependent upon such wretched street railway accommodations as this company provides. It is quite time that some action be taken either to compel the company to live up to its charter obligations or to vacate that charter and give another company a chance. There is not a city of twenty thousand people anywhere in this country where such an apology for street car service would be tolerated by the people a day longer than would be necessary to make a change through the action of the courts.

PATROL ON WHEELS.
It affords The Times a great deal of pleasure to see that its suggestions to equip a part of the police force with bicycles has found favor in the eyes of the municipal triumvirate. Changed conditions necessitate corresponding changes to meet them. As well might a regiment of infantry be required to overtake a squadron of cavalry as a perambulating policeman be expected to overtake a scorching wheelman. "Biking cops" have become as necessary in the city as mounted policemen in the country districts, and the Commissioners show a proper recognition of the new order of things by undertaking to put a number of the city's guardians on wheels.

Though this will be an innovation for Washington, it is by no means a novelty in other cities, for in the majority of larger ones the bicycle policeman has been a familiar sight for some time. The new device cannot fail to add to the efficiency of the force, for the policeman on a wheel can cover a great deal more ground and in less time than his brother officer who has no other means of locomotion than his own underpinnings. The wheel will enable the officer frequently to overtake an offender who now, because more swift of foot, escapes from him. The wheel will prove its usefulness in more than one way, and it will doubtless be as heartily welcomed by the men as its usefulness will be appreciated by the community.

THE WOMAN WHO DID.
In Bow road, London east, one Saturday evening, two men the worse for drink were fighting like demons. They were surrounded by an excited and yelling crowd, and on of whom attempted to interfere, and, as usual, there was no police to be seen.

An old lady carrying a cross-hatched market basket came upon the scene, at which time the combatants were on the ground kicking and punching each other in a most savage manner. The old lady paused only long enough to take in the situation. Then she went to work and belabored the women about their heads and bodies with her basket.

This unexpected and energetic attack so surprised the fighters that, suspending hostilities, they sat up and stared at their assailant in mute astonishment. Then the old lady, seeing the things seemed to strike them, they burst into hearty laughter and, getting up, took their coats and went away, apparently quite friendly, while the old lady retired triumphantly amid the cheers of the crowd.—London Answers.

Millionaires are generally supposed to be very superstitious, but if the fact of ill-fortune were to deter any of the little fry erecting stately houses in London, we would certainly be justified by precedent. To mention a case. The downfall of Blandin, the railway king, followed on his beginning to build a house for himself which should eclipse all others. Baron Albert Grand never got further than the foundations of the palace which he intended to have named Kensington Court. Mr. Sanford had hardly begun the interior of his house in Carlton House Terrace when "Argentine" went down and he was obliged to sell it to Mrs. Mackay. The completion of Lord Revelstoke's palace in Charles street coincided with the Baring crisis, and it has been to let or for sale ever since. Lord Rosebery rebuilt his house just in time to enable him to occupy it on the collapse of his government. Now the disasters which have fallen on the Chartered Company coincide with the completion of the external structure of Mr. Begg's mansion in Park Lane.—St. James Gazette.

THE WASHINGTON TIMES
OWNED AND ISSUED BY
THE WASHINGTON TIMES COMPANY,
THIRDS BUILDING
EASTWISSE CORNER PENNSYLVANIA AVENUE
AND TENTH STREET.
Telephone—Editorial Room, 333.
Business Office, 37.
Price—Morning or Evening Edition, One Cent
Sunday Edition, Three Cents
Monthly, by Carrier—
Morning and Sunday, Thirty-five Cents
Evening, Thirty Cents
Morning, Evening and Sunday, Fifty Cents
BY MAIL, POSTAGE PREPAID.
Morning, Evening and Sunday, 50c
Morning and Sunday, 35c
Evening and Sunday, 35c
WASHINGTON, D.C., MAY 31, 1896.

THE TIMES
claims a circulation
one-half greater than any other paper in Washington—
and has it.
Circulation books
open to all.
Investigation of advertisers especially solicited.

THE CIRCULATION OF THE TIMES FOR THE WEEK ENDED MAY 22, 1896, WAS AS FOLLOWS:
Saturday, May 16, 46,204
Sunday, May 17, 24,984
Monday, May 18, 56,870
Tuesday, May 19, 58,397
Wednesday, May 20, 56,281
Thursday, May 21, 47,182
Friday, May 22, 46,614
Total copies printed, 336,532
Less damaged copies, copies left over, unsold, in office, and copies returned, unsold, from news stands and branch offices, 23,995
Net, 312,537
I solemnly swear that the above is a correct statement of the circulation of THE WASHINGTON TIMES for the week ended May 22, 1896, and that every copy was delivered or mailed for a valuable consideration.
WILLIAM BUTLER,
Superintendent of Circulation.
Subscribed and sworn to before me this 23d day of May, A. D. 1896.
[SEAL] ERNEST G. THOMPSON,
Notary Public.

Twelve Hours Ago.
If you miss any news in the morning edition look in the list below. What you're looking for was probably printed in yesterday evening's edition, and as The Times never repeats you'll have to take both editions to get all the news as quick as it happens.

NOTED BY THE PRESIDENT—
Returns to Congress the River and Harbor Bill.
ST. LOUIS A MORGUE—
Number of dead now placed at 181 in City Hospital.
DEATH DUE TO STORM—
Homer drowned in which Mrs. Mary J. Lott.

PASSED BY THE SENATE—
Bill for Repeal of Free Alcohol Tariff Clause.
WHY TREES WERE INJURED—
Superintendent Smith says They Should Be Kept Trimmed.
SYMPATHY FOR ST. LOUIS—
Commissioners Send a Telegram to Mayor Walbridge.

DISTRICT IN CONGRESS—
Last Meeting of the Senate Local Committee.
WILL REMAND A REASON—
Discharged Employees of the Coast Survey Inveighed.
AMOS RUSSE HAS NO CASE—
His Appeal Did Not Warrant a Meeting of License Directors.

TIMES JUVENILE LEAGUE—
Uniform-Zephyr Contest Postponed on Account of Storm.
MAY STOP TONIGHT'S FIGHT—
Gov. Morton gives Notice to the Queens County Sheriff.

INVESTIGATION OF THE JAIL—
Prosecutor Cook Has New Charges to File With the Judges.
WHILING AWAY THE HOURS—
Outings and Amusements Planned by Well-known People.

IN THE WHEELING WORLD—
Michael Lowers His Own Record for Seven Miles.
FIRE! FIRE! IT WAS LOADED—
Quintus Political Revolution Introduced by Mr. Grosvenor.

JIMMY KIMBALL'S HUMOR—
Joke Out of the Story of a Man Who Has No Reason.
Palaces of Millionaires.
Millionaires are generally supposed to be very superstitious, but if the fact of ill-fortune were to deter any of the little fry erecting stately houses in London, we would certainly be justified by precedent. To mention a case. The downfall of Blandin, the railway king, followed on his beginning to build a house for himself which should eclipse all others. Baron Albert Grand never got further than the foundations of the palace which he intended to have named Kensington Court. Mr. Sanford had hardly begun the interior of his house in Carlton House Terrace when "Argentine" went down and he was obliged to sell it to Mrs. Mackay. The completion of Lord Revelstoke's palace in Charles street coincided with the Baring crisis, and it has been to let or for sale ever since. Lord Rosebery rebuilt his house just in time to enable him to occupy it on the collapse of his government. Now the disasters which have fallen on the Chartered Company coincide with the completion of the external structure of Mr. Begg's mansion in Park Lane.—St. James Gazette.

THE WASHINGTON TIMES
OWNED AND ISSUED BY
THE WASHINGTON TIMES COMPANY,
THIRDS BUILDING
EASTWISSE CORNER PENNSYLVANIA AVENUE
AND TENTH STREET.
Telephone—Editorial Room, 333.
Business Office,